

Home Depot Woodworking Show and Contest

This is the entries for the 2 classes in the contest. The criteria being must be able to fit into a 2 foot cube or not. Simple and as you can see produced more small entries than large.

As the club was demonstrating there were a lot of turnings entered, but the Niagara Woodcarvers were also there in force and they outnumbered us in demonstrators and contest entries.

The spinning wheel belongs to Eugen Schlaak and enters in the bigger than a 2 foot cube class

Just 2 more entries in the large class. A cedar deck storage box and Ted Robinson's laminated rocking chair.

Tom Hurst and Andy Ditomaso up front demonstrating. The crowds were a lot smaller than previous years but we still generated a lot of interest in the club

Waiting for Brian Book to start his pen Seminar. Sad to say the attendance was minimal. Not only for Brian but also the other seminars. Mainly I think because there were no announcements made over the store intercom when the seminars started.

Eugen had his own demo going on in another part of the store

Michel was running his saw mill out in the parking lot and was offering a free service. He obligingly cut up some black walnut for me that Brian Book had donated to my wood pile :-)
Thank you gentlemen.

And the Winners Are!

Large Class

Small Class

Prize Giving

Ted gets his First Prize package and looks a very happy man.

Eugen also happy to take Second in the large class

Tom Hurst gets Third in the Small class with his segmented Hollow Form

Andy was very surprised to win the draw for the Consolation prize and tried to hide from all the publicity.

All in all a good day for all who participated. All entries in the competition got a bag full of goodies. The club was certainly to the forefront during the whole day and to come away with 4 winners out of a possible 7 prizes awarded (total value over $4000) says a lot for the standard of talent that is within the club membership. Congratulations to all and see you next year.

Peter Hyde.
